

AUSTRALIA

Australia is internationally famous for wine, yet we have not established a great reputation for coffee even though half the country is perfect for cultivation.

Coffee production only began in the 1980s and is still small with only about 50 plantations across Northern NSW and Queensland. We only produce approximately 600 tonnes of coffee per year, yet we import almost 80,000 tonnes!

One of the significant advantages of Australian coffee is that it remains leaf rust free. A disease that devastates coffee farms around the world has not reached our shores.

So c'mon Aussie c'mon let's support Australian coffee!

ABOUT THE FARM/ESTATE

These beautiful K7 cherries are grown on the mountain top estate in Nimbin, Australia. A family owned business that has been running since the 90's. With rich volcanic soil and a low altitude, the flavours and characteristics of the coffee grown here is extremely unique.

TASTING NOTES

Complex flavours of watermelon, apple and sultanas with a syrupy body.

Acidity

Sweet citris and green apple.

Body

Syrupy and well rounded.
